

Royal College of Physicians

Are you a resident doctor? At the start of your medical career?

This autumn, the RCP is launching a brand new initiative, the #NextGenPhysicians campaign.

We want to improve the working lives of early career doctors and support the next generation of physicians to achieve their full potential.

We'll be:

- > setting up a next generation oversight group
- > launching a blog series showcasing the experiences of early career doctors
- > surveying resident doctors across the UK
- > publishing resources to support medical education and career development
- > advocating for change by working with the NHS, governments and others.
